PROGRAM: Introduced by fellow Rotarian Mike Birbeck, our speaker today was John Shaffer, the head coach of the women's soccer team at Mansfield University. John is no stranger to our Rotary as he was recognized as student of the month in 2003! He is currently working on his second year as the team's head coach and shared some of his core values and principles in leading the team. His number one belief is that good people make good players and works hard to create a cohesive group of athletes that works well together as one. Number two, he realizes that in any team whether it's sports, business or home, that as a leader you need to build a culture in order to result in success. Number three, control the controllables! Please don't waste valuable time and effort on things you can't control. And last but most importantly, choose positivity! Positivity is infectious and to be successful and make a difference, there's no room on a team for negativity. John is an inspiration to his team and the future of women's soccer at Mansfield University is in great hands! Thank you John!
